

GIRL'S PASSION FOR FEVER LED TO THEFT AND DEATH

Police Say She Inspired Payroll Robbery for Which Four Are Indicted.

STOLEN MONEY MISSING.

Despite Confessions, Police Can't Locate Loot Supposed to Be Cashed.

The Bronx County Grand Jury today found an indictment charging robbery in the first degree against the four young men who held up Adam Brede and James McClary, bank messengers, at 128th Street and Willow Avenue yesterday. While the Grand Jury was considering the case the prisoners were arraigned in Morrisania Police Court and committed for forty-eight hours without bail.

Assistant District Attorney Quigley said that he had considered asking the Grand Jury to find an indictment against the four men, none over twenty, was due to good police work by a Mount Vernon traffic cop whose name local authorities have not named.

Tony de Luca, chauffeur, of No. 616 East 161st Street, is credited with being the leader of the hold-up. Living with de Luca was a girl named Althea May, who is held as a material witness. It is claimed her love for money led the chauffeur to frame the robbery.

The money was for the payroll of the International Handkerchief Company at 137th Street and Willow Avenue, an isolated location. Many cases are among the 200 factory employees and, police say, de Luca met some of them, learned about methods of paying off the hands and set his plans accordingly.

With three companions he is said to have made several trips to the scene and rehearsed the hold-up to the most minute detail. Everything worked out according to plans and after the getaway de Luca, police say, headed the car for Bridgeport, Conn., to hide. The pay bag and de Luca's revolver, the only gun in the party, were thrown out of the car. The quartet had $100 between them, and it was deemed advisable to get rid of the $3,500 temporarily. They cashed the money in the yard of Contractor Oscar Daniels at Moshol Parkway and Jerome Avenue, and their cunning was rewarded when the Mount Vernon traffic cop, having been notified of the hold-up by the general alarm sent out by the New York police, and received a description of the car and its occupants, stuck up the quartet with a gun and made de Luca drive to the station.

Nothing was found on the men or in the car to connect them with the robbery, but they were held until the arrival of Brede and McClary, who identified de Luca and Felix Bruno, a student mechanic of No. 410 East 101st Street. The others were Barratieri Tuello, a chauffeur, No. 441 East 117th Street and John Citre, a mechanic, No. 242 East 117th Street. Subsequently all four confessed.

The men then told of the cache in the contractor's yard. Police searched all afternoon and all night, but without avail. They believe some one saw the robbers park the money and dug it up as soon as the car was out of sight.

De Luca was arrested for grand larceny on July 22, 1920, and was discharged. On Sept. 25, 1921, he was arrested as a pickpocket and sent to the workhouse for three months. John Citre was sent to the workhouse ten days as a pickpocket on Nov. 21, 1920, and in Jersey City on Aug. 2, 1921, was sentenced to ninety days for a similar offense.

Teido Bruno was arrested on Aug. 3, 1921, for burglary, but was acquitted. On Nov. 22, 1920, he was arrested on charges of assault and robbery in the Coney Island district, and the case is still pending. Bruno having been out on $5,000 bail for nearly two years.

MARINO TO DIE WEEK OF AUG. 7 FOR VAROTTA MURDER

Swears by Crucifix That He's Innocent After Being Sentenced.

The trial of the Court of General Sessions of Canto Cusumano for participation in the kidnapping and murder of five-year-old Giuseppe Varotta in May, 1921, was interrupted today while Judge Talley sentenced to death Antonio Marino, convicted last week of murder in the first degree by taking part in the same crime. Marino was sentenced to die in the week beginning Aug. 7.

On motion of Joseph Rosalsky, counsel for Cusumano, the jury in the case was sent from the room while sentence was being pronounced on Marino. The condemned man, who carried a crucifix in front of his face as he walked across the Bridge of Signs from the Tombs, said through an interpreter after sentence had been pronounced:

"I swear by this crucifix that I am innocent. I am a poor man with a wife and children. I wish this case to be appealed and I wish the Judge to assign a lawyer who knows about the case to conduct the appeal."

Du Pont Heiress and Poor Student Of Norwalk, Married in England

MISS ALICIA DUPONT

Church Wedding of Rich Girl and Mail Carrier's Son Followed by Reception.

LONDON, June 23.—This morning in St. Paul's Church, Knightsbridge, Miss Alicia du Pont, daughter of Alfred I. du Pont of Wilmington, Del., was married to Harold Glendinning of Norwalk, Conn. Miss Helen Hackett of New York was bridesmaid, Mr. Russell Rhodes was best man, and the bride was given away by her father.

A reception and luncheon was given afterward at the Hyde Park Hotel and the couple left for their honeymoon in Switzerland and on the Isle of Wight.

Miss du Pont met Mr. Glendinning, who is a Rhodes scholar, on the Aquitania two years ago. She was on her way to Europe for music study, which she says she will continue. Mr. Glendinning is studying law, and he is said to be almost as poor as his bride is rich. His father was a mail carrier.

Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. James K. Hackett, Lord and Lady Cholmondeley, Rear Admiral Albert P. Niblack, Edward Bradford, Bryant Baker and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Armour.

Girl Demands $150 Back She Paid East Side Matchmaker When She Finds Suitor Objects to Work

Gussie, in Court, Says It Cost Her $2 Down and $3 to $6 for Each Visit of Prospective Husband.

Whether a professional matchmaker on the east side legally can be made to give back money paid by a young woman for a husband because the husband didn't suit will be decided by Magistrate McAndrews in Essex Market Court to-morrow when Gussie Frankel, who is twenty-four years old, she told the Magistrate that she paid $2 down for the introduction to Maurice. She said she liked him very much and arranged for him to visit her the next day. This cost her $3. Then began regular visits by Maurice for which she paid from $3 to $6.

The case is of momentous import on the east side because it vitally affects a respected profession. It is expected that matchmakers will crowd the court awaiting the decision.

Miss Frankel, according to the story she told the Magistrate to-day, paid $150 to Mrs. Gordon for her services in bringing to her a prospective husband Maurice Goldstein. In some respects Maurice was all right, Miss Frankel told Magistrate McAndrews, but he had one fatal defect. This was that he didn't like work, she said. And from her standpoint a husband who wouldn't work would be worse than no husband at all. So she wanted her money back and Mrs. Gordon had refused to return it.

What is believed to be an entirely new schedule of prices for the peculiarly delicate services performed by matchmakers was revealed by Miss Frankel, who is twenty-four years old. She told the Magistrate that she paid $2 down for the introduction to Maurice. She said she liked him very much and arranged for him to visit her the next day. This cost her $3. Then began regular visits by Maurice for which she paid from $3 to $6.

Upon her discovery she called the bargain off and asked Mrs. Gordon for her money back. Mrs. Gordon refused. Gussie then appealed to Detective Quinn and Smythe of the 5th Street Station who referred her to Magistrate McAndrews.

MELTZ INDICTED; BURGLARY CHARGED

Accused in Connection With Attempted Robbery — 2 Others in Tombs.

David Meltz, of No. 1073 East 2d Street, Brooklyn, manager for the American Carpet Company at No. 306 Fifth Avenue, was indicted for burglary in the third degree to-day with Joseph Morris and John Behrman, who were arrested on Saturday after the building at Nos. 306 and 308 Fifth Avenue had been surrounded by policemen and detectives.

Meltz was arrested at his home Monday charged with having arranged to admit the other two men to No. 306 Fifth Avenue Saturday afternoon so they could cut their way through the wall to the clothing factory of W. A. Laughlin in the building next door.

Judge Johnston in General Sessions held Meltz in $5,000 bail, which was furnished by his counsel, Leonard A. Sinitkin. The other two were sent to the Tombs in default of $25,000 bail.

HEARST BUYS PAPER IN ALBANY, IS REPORT

William R. Hearst has bought the Albany Times-Union and it will play an important part in his political campaign up-State, according to a statement to-day from his political headquarters.

The paper was owned by former Gov. Martin H. Glynn. The purchase price has not been made public.

YOUR BATHING SUIT MAY WIN YOU $50 IN PHOTO CONTEST

Evening World Photographers Will Snap Costumes on Beaches.

For those who wear the prettiest bathing suits to Manhattan-Brighton and to Long Branch next Saturday afternoon $500 in prizes are waiting: $100 at each stretch of ocean shore; $50 for the prettiest costume at either beach; $25 for the next prettiest; $25 more ($5 each) for the next five most attractive at either beach.

The photographers for The Evening World will take station under conspicuous signs at the two beaches; they will photograph any pretty costume in which a candidate presents herself; all that is asked is that the correct name and address be given to the photographer and that is only required for a second time within the week last night and destroyed property valued at $500,000 while snipers, believed to be Mexican, raked the blazing area with rifle fire.

KILL RUM RUNNER, SEIZE ACCOMPLICE IN GRAVESEND BAY

Dry Agents Tell of Pistol Battle, but Prisoner Denies Shooting.

FAST DORY SEIZED.

Craft Had Loaded Thirty Cases of Scotch Outside Harbor.

Prohibition agents assigned to night patrol of the harbor told to-day of a pistol battle with whiskey smugglers in Gravesend Bay in the early hours of the morning in which George Helander of No. 361 Flatbush Avenue, Brooklyn, owner of the motor boat Sea Bird, was killed, Fred Hommel of the Rogers Hotel, Rockaway Park, was made a prisoner and the Sea Bird and a cargo of thirty cases of Scotch whiskey seized.

Hommel, on the other hand, asserts that not a shot was fired by Helander or himself. He charges that the Prohibition agents opened fire from their launch as soon as they got in range, that Helander was fatally wounded in the first volley and that the Prohibition agents kept on firing at the motor boat while he, inexperienced in handling the craft, was trying to stop the engine.

No weapons were found in the boat or on the persons of the dead man or the prisoner. In Helander's pocket was found a receipt showing that he recently purchased two boxes of cartridges. The Prohibition agents claim that Hommel, when he saw that capture was inevitable, threw pistols and ammunition overboard.

Hommel admits that he and Helander made a business of smuggling whiskey. The Sea Bird, a 23-foot dory, was equipped with a Pierce-Arrow motor and capable of making 25 miles an hour. She went out to sea yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock and took on 30 cases of Scotch. Hommel refuses to say where the liquor was obtained.

It appears that the Prohibition patrol had been watching the Sea Bird. Agent James Lynch, who was in charge of the patrol party last night, said the Government launch used by the agents chased the Sea Bird a week ago last night, but was unable to catch it.

When the Sea Bird went out yesterday orders were given to watch for her return. The launch, with Lynch and Agents John McDams, George Barron, Edward Stere and W. C. Almsey, as passengers, and in command of Capt. Tobin, went down to Gravesend Bay after dark and took up a station just inside Norton's Point.

The Sea Bird came in shortly after 1 o'clock. Hommel said she was bound for the pier at Ulmer Park. When the Prohibition launch took up the chase and the agents began to shoot, he says he asked Helander, who was at the engine, to stop.

"I can't," said Helander, according to Hommel, "I'm shot." Helander, according to Hommel's story, dropped to the floor of the launch. Hommel then went to the engine, but had to lift Helander out of the way. While he worked with the engine, he charges, bullets whistled around him and the Prohibition men continued to fire until they were almost alongside.

Both men are charged with robbing and shooting John Brady, No. 119 Lincoln Avenue, Jamaica, who had $40 and a gold watch taken from him at the night of May 30 at Allen Street and Van Wyck Avenue, Jamaica. Brady fought the assailants and a bullet passed through his cheeks, carrying away some of his teeth.

Five other hold-ups described in Price's confession were:

Henry Zentgraf, held up May 27 at Liberty and Whittier Avenues, Jamaica, robbed of money and jewelry.

Charles Atkin, held up May 29, at Liberty and Wyckoff Avenues, Richmond Hill.

Henry Keutchner, held up May 29, on Atlantic Avenue, Richmond Hill, and shot through the cheeks while protecting $1,400.

William O'Donnell, held up May 29, at 95th Avenue and 81st Street, Richmond Hill.

John Donohue, held up Feb. 27, "To the best of my memory that's all," said Price, "and Scott lies when he says he wasn't concerned in all of them."

Price was taken to Long Island City for arraignment.

SNIPERS AT MEXICALI RAKE FIRE-SWEPT AREA

Border Resorts Wiped Out in Second Incendiary Blast in Week. CALEXICO, Cal., June 28.—Incendiary fire swept Mexicali for a second time within the week last night and destroyed property valued at $500,000 while snipers, believed to be Mexican, raked the blazing area with rifle fire.

The famous Owl Cafe, one of the best known resorts on the border, and the stockade were destroyed.

M'PARLAND HEAD OF TYPOS.

New Yorker Re-elected by International Union; Majority 4,533.

INDIANAPOLIS, June 28.—John McParland of New York was re-elected President of the International Typographical Union by a majority of 4,533 over Walter W. Barrett of Chicago, his only opponent, according to the official tabulation.

McParland received 28,722 votes to his opponent's 24,213.

CHARGES AGAINST TEACHER RESULT OF DEATH INQUIRY

Freeport Boards Asked to Suspend Instructor Named in Lavo Case.

Out of the inquiry into the death of Miss Edith E. Lavo, Freeport school teacher, for whose death William Cressy is held without bail at Mineola jail, has come a demand for an investigation of the conduct of one other teacher at the Grove Street School, Freeport.

In his first statement after Miss Lavo was shot dead, Cressy made statements reflecting on the character of Miss Lavo. The inquest showed these statements were quite untrue. Cressy afterward retracted them.

Incidentally to the investigation Raymond D. Malone, counsel for Cressy, came upon information which led him to write to the Board of Education asking the suspension of a teacher on the ground that Mr. Malone regarded her as "not a fit and proper person to preside over the education of his five-year-old son." He said he made the demand as a citizen of Freeport, not as counsel for Cressy.

Mr. Malone said to-day that President Sutherland of the board at first agreed to make an investigation, but later informed him the board would communicate with him further.

The body of Miss Lavo had been removed to the home of her mother at Tupper Lake for burial. Assistant District Attorney Edwards to-day gave out two letters written by Miss Edith Lavo, Freeport school teacher, to her friend, George Davidson of No. 23 East 23d Street, Manhattan. There was no reference in the letters to indicate that the girl contemplated suicide.

One was dated Thursday last and the other on Friday, a short time before the shooting.

The Assistant District Attorney said he had questioned Miss Louise Carter, a teacher in the same school with Miss Lavo, and learned that she saw Cressy at the school at noon Thursday.

Miss Carter said although Cressy knew her he did not speak. He had "a strange look on his face," Mr. Edwards quoted her as saying.

"What is the matter with Billy?" Miss Carter said she asked Miss Lavo later.

Miss Lavo answered, according to Mr. Edwards, "I do not know what I am going to do," and burst into tears. "Won't you let me ask a policeman?" Miss Carter said she asked.

"No, you know what gossip there will be," Miss Lavo replied.

POLICE SAY NEGRO ADMITS SIX HOLD-UPS

Two Victims in Queens Shot Through Cheeks—Implicates Another.

Robert Price, thirty-three, colored, of No. 31 Fleet Street, Brooklyn, brought here to-day from Tennessee by Detective Sergeant Zeman of the Jamaica Station, has confessed, the police say, to taking part in six recent hold-ups in Queens, in two of which the victims were shot through the cheeks. Price implicated Daniel Scott, thirty-four, colored, of No. 100 Allen Street, Jamaica, who was arraigned yesterday in the Jamaica Court. Price is under indictment.

Both men are charged with robbing and shooting John Brady, No. 119 Lincoln Avenue, Jamaica, who had $40 and a gold watch taken from him at the night of May 30 at Allen Street and Van Wyck Avenue, Jamaica. Brady fought the assailants and a bullet passed through his cheeks, carrying away some of his teeth.

Five other hold-ups described in Price's confession were:

Henry Zentgraf, held up May 27 at Liberty and Whittier Avenues, Jamaica, robbed of money and jewelry.

SELF CONTROL.

At Cadogan and Nassau Streets I saw a young woman drop a pair of long black kid gloves. The girl who picked them up poked the owner in the back with an umbrella. She didn't even turn. The girl poked her again and the owner of the gloves wheeled about with blazing eyes and flushed face. I think she was prepared to give some one a good bawling out, but instead accepted the gloves, smiled prettily, and said a sweet and charming "Thank you."—C. F. N., Cornwall-on-Hudson, N. Y.

A LESSON FOR MEN.

I called to-day upon a young friend whose brother has a pet fox. I saw fox, kittens and chickens eating out of the same dish at the same time.—Margaret Beck, Medford, L. I.

SHE TREATS HIM ROUGH.

I was crossing at 121st Street and Park Avenue last night when some body gave me a poke in the back. I turned, ready for action. "I beg your pardon," said a good looking woman, "I thought you were my husband."—W. F., Trinity Avenue.

BUT THEY'RE IN THE LAUNDRY ONLY ONCE A WEEK.

On a visit to the hospital I observed that the internes in the dispensary wear white coats on which the word "Stolen" is printed in large letters. None of these coats is ever lost on the way through the laundry.—Irwin Robinson, 105 West 118th Street.

SIR!

A druggist of the old school in our neighborhood recently came to the conclusion that he had wasted long enough and installed a soda fountain. When a popular young woman of the district dropped in on him to-day for a box of face powder, she said: "You know what I want? Strawberry, chocolate or vanilla?" and lost a good customer.—G. G. Ryder, Woodside Avenue and Second Street, Woodside, L. I.

WELL, SOMEBODY'LL GET DEMPSEY.

At Houston and Cannon Streets I saw a youth of perhaps seventeen, weighing maybe 125 and about 5 feet 10 inches tall, shadow boxing in the street. He wore a bathing cap. I presume to avoid getting a cauliflower ear. Jack Dempsey was said to go against Dempsey.—J. Richland, 29 Lewis Street.

WET DOG.

Government employees were getting on the Governor's Island "tub" ferry at 4:30 P. M. when a dog tumbled from the sea wall and set shivering on a rock below. The dog was a small, black and white, and he was standing on the poor chap inquired: "Yes, ma'am; strawberry, chocolate or vanilla?" and lost a good customer.—G. G. Ryder, Woodside Avenue and Second Street, Woodside, L. I.

WHAT'S ALL THE SHOOTING FOR?

I see that the 1922 open season for Long Island husbands is on.—A. Benedick, Hempstead, L. I.

THE YOUNG MOTHER.

I suppose nothing should surprise us in these days of flapper mothers and flapper grandmothers, but I really was startled to-day when I saw a young mother coming down the hall—where the baby was sleeping—stuffed with a four-month-old baby. Although she was turned every which way the infant made all the curves in life. Everybody was wondering who was holding the baby.—E. Stamford, Conn.

WHAT WAS HE DOING IN THE BALCONY?

This happened at a Saturday matinee. One of the late comers was a woman, who in the light of the theatre apparently mistook for a brass pot the shiny bald pate of a short slim little man sitting in an end seat at the back of the balcony. Anyhow, she stood on the man's head as if to steady herself before going down the balcony.—R. M. S., Avenue B.

A MODERN MAIDEN.

I saw a young woman, one of several standees in an open, the Kalm Avenue car, climb over the back of the seat in front of her and take the place just vacated by a man.—Howard J. Lane, No. 41 Hiram Road, Brooklyn.

RUDE REMARKS OF AN OLD GUY TO TWO YOUNG GENTLEMEN.

During the 5 o'clock rush at Times Square Station an elderly man was almost bowled over by the two well-dressed young fellows who showed after him. The old fellow said: "When these kids live in New York long enough, I said one to the other, 'they don't get hurt.'"

WARD IS PEELING POTATOES IN JAIL; SEEMS TO LIKE IT

"Star Prisoner" Also Washes Kettles in Routine of Kitchen Assignments.

PUTS ON DENIM APRON.

Investigators for His Counsel Said to Renew Search for "Ross" and "Jack."

Walter S. Ward, in White Plains jail, without bail, under indictment for the murder of Clarence Peters, is doing kitchen police duty in the jail kitchen—and says he likes it.

The assignment of the "star prisoner" to peeling potatoes and washing kettles was made in the ordinary routine by which prisoners are assigned to such work. When informed of it he made no comment. The jailers said that he seemed to feel it a great joke on himself when he donned the long denim apron furnished for the work and took up a knife to prepare the first mess of potatoes for the forty prisoners with whom he shares the jail.

While engaged in K. F. duty, according to the keepers, Ward sheds the morose scowl which marks his face when in his cell and asks advice humorously of his companions.

Allan R. Campbell of counsel for Ward appeared to-day before Coroner Fitzgerald in anticipation of an inquest into the death of Peters. The inquest was formally dispensed with, however, as explained in The Evening World of yesterday, on the affidavit of District Attorney Weeks that the finding of the Grand Jury made it unnecessary to hold a Coroner's inquest as to how Peters came to his death, and at whose hands.

Mr. Campbell made no comment except that he had thought for some time that the inquest was a superfluous proceeding.

The activities of the investigators under the direction of Mr. Campbell were somewhat obviously revealed to-day as giving the appearance of renewing the search for "Charley Ross" and "Jack," the men who were said by Ward to have accompanied Peters and for whom he said Peters acted in demand of $75,000, in addition to $30,000 already paid.

It was explained that the search for the pair had been made necessary by the contention of the prosecutor that Ward's story was proved to be untrue by a careful study of the movements of Peters between April 26, when he left his home at Haverhill, Mass., and April 16, when he was found dead. In that time according to the evidence of stamped railroad tickets issued to him by the Government, Peters was in New York only from 7 to 10 o'clock in the morning of April 27 and for an uncertain time a few hours at most.

After he arrived in Philadelphia, returning from the Marine Barracks at Paris Island, S. C., at 2:45 P. M., May 15.

Ralph Ward swore in a John Doe investigation that his father, George S. Ward, had told him Walter said Peters, "Charley Ross" and "Jack" had been together making a blackmail demand on Walter on a Westchester road May 14.

The Ward detectives said they had been told that even at the cost of revealing the story on which the blackmail demand was based they "must find the blackmasks to offset the prosecution's report and prove that Peters had a part in the blackmail plot."

District Attorney Frederick E. Weeks went to Brooklyn to-day to ask Justice Blackmar of the Appellate Division for a stay of Justice Morschauer's order directing the furnishing of the Grand Jury minutes to Ward's counsel. The motion, if granted, cannot be argued until fall.

The Westchester Grand Jury for June will be dismissed to-morrow unless the District Attorney changes his mind. This means that no effort will be made at present to indict George S. Ward for conspiracy to suppress evidence and bring him back to this State by extradition.

As soon as the Grand Jury is dismissed, Justice Morschauer will go on his vacation at Nantucket. He has promised to return to sit in Special Term on Friday during July 15 hearings.

WOMAN IDENTIFIES BURGLAR WHO BEAT HER.

Walter Stroh and his wife, Frances, and Frank McCave, all of No. 553 West 161st Street, held in connection with burglaries in 6,000 Third Avenue months, were held for examination on Friday in Washington Heights Court to-day. A woman, who gave her name as Miss Elaine No. 144 Sherman Avenue, identified McCave as the burglar discovered by her in her apartment and who attacked her. She appeared in the care of a nurse.
